It's A RACKET

By CLAUDE S. HAMMOCK

Fairfield was one of many towns that had suffered from an "oil boom" years ago. Spurred by dreams of sudden wealth, rich and poor alike poured their money into a local company—only to enrich some well-drilling concern. And there the matter rested for several years. Then, one day, a weather-beaten middle-aged man called on George Meadows.

"Mr. Meadows," he asked, "didn't a local company drill for oil here, some years ago?"

Meadows laughed. "Yes," he replied. "We went oil crazy—like all the rest. We drilled some nice dry holes in the ground. But that's a long time ago, and I guess it's about forgotten. . . . Why do you ask?"

"I'm an old oil-driller," the man said. "My name's Ira Brooks. If I could find a place to dig around a little, I guess I'd be happier. It wouldn't matter much whether I found oil or not."

Meadows shook his head. "You'll never find oil here. I'm sure of that. I know all about it, for I was secretary of the old company."

"I don't suppose you've got a list of the stockholders, have you?" Brooks asked.

"Why, yes. I have all the records. I've also got a lot of beautifully engraved stock certificates."

Brooks relaxed. "I've retired—and I'm pretty well fixed. But I want something to do. I'd buy the stock of the company if I could get it cheap enough—just for a sort of plaything."

"When Meadows saw that his caller was serious, he produced the list of stockholders. The total investment had been about $30,000."

"There's the list," said Meadows. "The stock is worthless, but if you wanted to buy it—you'll have no trouble. What'll you pay?"

"I'll give ten cents on the dollar," replied Brooks, "—on a ninety-day option. If I get enough options, I'll go through with it."

"I'll give you mine and you'll get all the rest!" Meadows assured him.

Two or three days later a very prosperous-looking man called on George Meadows.

"My name is Beverly Stark," said the man. "I am vice-president of the Trans-Oceanic Petroleum Corporation. Our record gives your name as secretary of the Fairfield Oil Company. Is that right?"

"Yes," said Meadows. "But the company is dormant. We never struck oil. We have no assets except the oil lease—and there's no oil!"

"Well, Mr. Meadows," the stranger said, "we know all about that, but our company wants to buy all the stock just the same."

Meadows smiled. "That's strange," he said. "There's a man here in town now, who has been buying up options on this stock. He has it practically all signed up now."

Beverly Stark was amazed. "Why, I don't understand it! Our company has made a great discovery concerning this matter—but nobody outside our organization could possibly know about it! . . . Who is this man?"

"His name," said Meadows, "is Ira Brooks."

"Ira Brooks!" shouted Stark. "Why, it's preposterous! He was with our company until a week or so ago! He must have discovered our secret and is trying to interfere with our plans! How much did he promise to pay?"

"Ten cents on the dollar—in ninety days," Meadows replied.

"Mr. Meadows! This is a very serious matter with us! I must have that stock without much delay! It's part of a very far-reaching plan! This man Brooks is an adventurer!"

"But," said Meadows, "he has the options!"

"Well, we'll have to get them back!"

Mr. Meadows, here's a chance for you to do your fellow stockholders a good turn—and make a substantial commission for yourself! . . . Are you interested?"

"Very much so!" said Meadows.

"Then, get your stockholders together and have them buy back the options! Suppose they do have to pay brooks a profit. That's all he's holding out for! I'll take all the options at seventy-five cents on the dollar—CASH—and allow you a commission of five per cent. Will you take care of it?"

"I certainly will!" said Meadows. "Beverly Stark scribbled on a card, 'Wire me at that address as soon as you can deliver. But I can't give you more than three days!'"

In less than two days Ira Brooks, after much bargaining, had surrendered all his options covering stock of $25,000 par. Meadows and his friends were elated. A telegram was promptly dispatched to Beverly Stark.

But after a day's delay, the telegram company reported that no such person as "Beverly Stark" was known at the address given.

In the meantime, "Ira Brooks" had departed from Fairfield with a net profit of more than $900.

Senator Wilson Will Introduce Bob Bailey

Senator John L. Wilson of Hope will introduce Lieutenant Governor Bob Bailey who is scheduled to be the principal speaker here next Tuesday at the convention of the Arkansas Heritages and Collectors' association.

W. S. Atkins of Hope will be master of ceremonies and will introduce the balance of the speakers.

On March 21 and September 22 the days and nights are of equal length throughout the world.

Four 'Parents' Claiming Donald Age and Youth Draw Battle Lines As Town Awaits Fight To "Free" Teacher

Slightly bewildered by the claims and counter claims of two sets of parents, 31-month-old Donald Regan-Horst laughingly enjoys a romp with his real mother and father, John and Lydia Regan, top photo, and lovingly bids goodby to his foster-parents, Otto and Martha Horst, below, before going to a Chicago orphanage where he will await a court decision on his case. Object of a wide search after his "kidnaping" from his Horst home, born out of wedlock, had been given to the childless Horsts at birth. Mrs. Horst is equally determined to keep him.

Beer Permits Are Denied Three More

Nine Applications From Hot Springs Dealers Turned Down

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(AP)—C. B. Lovell, Sr., Garland county revenue inspector, said Saturday he had been notified by the state revenue department the applications of three retail dealers to sell beer here had been refused.

Nine applications by Hot Springs dealers to sell beer have been refused this week, he said.

Golf Tournament to Be Held Here

Low Brown, New Professional, Announces Tournament Here Sunday

Low Brown, former Little Rock and Camden professional golf player who has taken active charge of the local course, announced Saturday that a tournament would be played here Sunday afternoon.

"It will be 'bogey' competition, with the handicap to be determined from a drawing. Beginners as well as experienced players are invited by Mr. Brown to participate."

Under Mr. Brown's direction, the course has been improved and is now in good shape. Mr. Brown is making his home in Hope and is desirous of meeting all local golf players.

Ask Warrant for Chicago Doctor

Physician Is Sought for Falsifying Birth Certificate

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Corporation Counsel Barnett Hodges sought to obtain a warrant Friday charging Dr. John A. Rose with falsifying the birth certificate of Donald Horst, central figure in a custody fight between his real and foster mothers.

But Chief Justice John J. Sonstebj of the municipal court refused to issue one, ruling the information presented was insufficient.

Two couples seek the 31-month-old lad—Mr. and Mrs. Otto Horst, who claim the youngster because they reared him since the day of his birth, and John Regan and Lydia Nelson, who contend they should have him because they are his natural parents.

Hodges said the board of health had notified him Dr. Rose had filed a birth certificate stating the child was born to Mrs. Horst, although he was actually borne by Miss Nelson.

Assistant Prosecutor Wilbert Crowley had previously explained the baby, by a pre-natal agreement between Dr. Rose and Miss Nelson, had been given Mrs. Horst 15 minutes after his birth.

"If Dr. Rose admits the falsification or Mrs. Horst signs an affidavit admitting she did not give birth to the child, there will be more adequate verification of the charge and a warrant will then be issued," Justice Sonstebj asserted.

Officials then arranged to question Miss Nelson and Mrs. Horst anew concerning the record of the youngster's nativity.

Horst announced he had retained At-

"Cocktail Party" Served Students by Teacher Aired

Youth Wants Pretty Miss Isabelle Hallin, Teacher, Reinstated

SLANDER SUIT FILED

Father Backs Daughter's Denial of Cocktail Charge

By HELEN WELSHIMER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
SAUGUS, Mass.—Age and youth are marshaling their forces for a fight to the finish here.

In this peaceful little town where the houses all have green lawns shaded by tall trees, and life has ambled along pleasantly enough even since the first settler came out from Boston, youth is preparing to demand a New Deal, even if it has to pack the school board to do it.

Youth wants pretty, 25-year-old Isabelle Hallin reinstated as teacher of her English class in the red brick high school building. But it isn't counting much on a change of opinion on the part of the board members who ousted her, when they meet again on August 17.

Therefore, the Board of Selectmen, under the influence of youth and its cohorts, has called a town meeting for the first part of September to vote to "petition" the state legislature "for more school board members. Saugus is entitled to nine members. It has only five. Anybody may come to the meeting but only the 240 town meeting members may cast ballots. Should the petition carry, the Massachusetts State Legislature will act on the question when it convenes in January. Not until March, when the Saugus town election is held, can the four new members be elected.

Slander Suit Awaited
Miss Maria Smith, 75 year old, who taught school for 50 years and once was Miss Hallin's instructor, continues to be storm center on the school board. She is the one who first scattered information that Miss Hallin served cocktails on a night in spring when the cast of a high school play, which she was coaching, convened in the orange and black game-room at the Hallin home—a room which contains a bar with a brass rail.

Half of the town thinks that Isabelle Hallin was too pretty, popular and well dressed to teach. Some believe she served cocktails to her students. Half of the town says she was one of the finest teachers who ever taught in Saugus, that she didn't serve anything to drink and didn't drink, and that they want her back.

Meantime there will be a regular riot of interest this fall when Miss Hallin sues Mrs. Charles B. McDuffy, wife of the minister of the Cliftondale Congregational Church, for $10,000 for slander and interference in the signing of the contract.

"Certainly my daughter should sue her," C. F. Hallin, father of the school teacher and owner of an automobile electrical shop, asserts.

Students defend Her
The high school boys and girls stand shoulder to shoulder with the deposed teacher. Corner them anywhere, alone or in a group, and the answers are alike.

"She's a swell teacher! She's strict, too, and gives demerits when we need them. I don't believe one thing people say against her! She isn't that kind of a girl!" says Paul Wasserbohrer, a senior in Saugus High school.

"I'll say she isn't. She's swell," Fred W. Butler, another senior, adds.

"She's a fine teacher and everybody likes her. It's a shame people are making trouble for her."

"Gee, she's a good actress. When we fellows would dramatize things in school she would take the girls' parts and she's grand! She's pretty and kind and popular and everything."

Robert McKinnon, who was in Miss Hallin's freshman English class, offers.

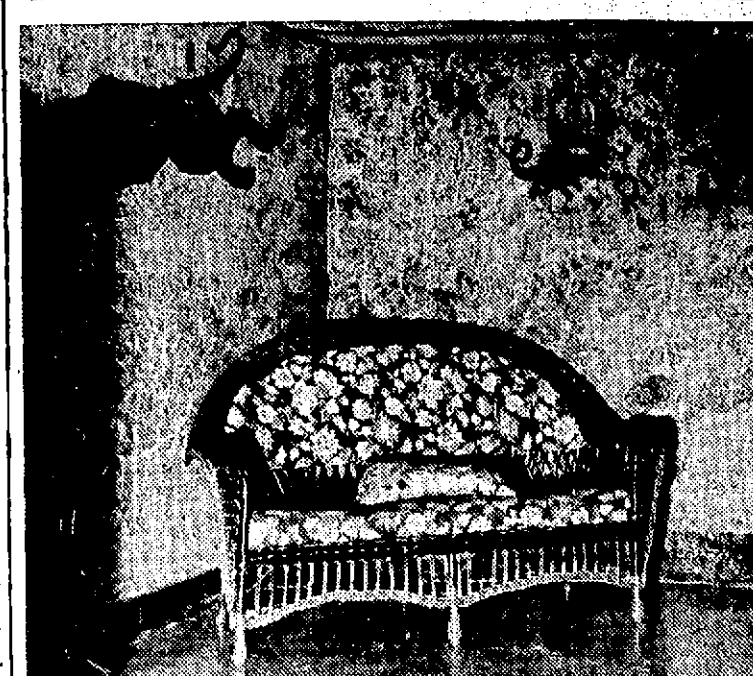

Board's Silence Lamented
Miss Maria Smith, away for a vacation, left definite commands that she should not be disturbed. Her niece, Mrs. Fred M. Stanley, who occupies part of the house where the board member lives, is sorry that the board people will not speak up.

"They should tell their side of the case," she insists. "I think they aren't talking enough. The board members are all lovely people."

Mr. Waldo Russell, a man of 60 or so, who is president of the board, is saying little, too.

Only the young people and their sympathizers, and C. F. Hallin, the red-headed father of the girl who is the pivot of Saugus's town warfare,

Sino-Jap Conflict Marked by 'Quiet'

No Guns Are Fired—Only Noise Is Movement of Troops

By the Associated Press
A month after the Sino-Japanese hostilities flared up near Peiping an ominous quiet was broken Saturday only by sounds of moving troops.

No guns spoke in North China where Japanese crushed local resistance in Tientsin and Peiping, but both had massed troops in the area.

Japanese forces in the area were estimated Saturday at from 33,000 to 45,000. Chinese forces were estimated to have 350,000 on the field.

High Prices Paid for Hogs at Chicago Mart

CHICAGO.—(AP)—The highest prices in 11 years were paid for hogs and the meat they yield Friday.

Acute scarcity of hogs, due mostly to small feed grain production in the drought years 1934 and 1935, spurred the upturn. Livestock authorities watching developments at the world's greatest meat packing center, where receipts recently have been the smallest on record, could see a prospect of materially increased movement of swine to slaughter within the next few months.

Although checked by almost $14 hogs for the first time since 1926, corn belt farmers were unable to benefit from high prices to the full extent because they lacked hogs to sell in normal volume. Consumers, paying the highest prices for some pork cuts in 11 years and correspondingly high prices for some other types of meat, pinned hopes for relief on the big corn crop now ripening.

Baby Reported to Be Out of Danger

Three and a Half Pound Girl Passes Critical Stage Saturday

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—(AP)—Frances Mary Boccassini, three and a half pound baby girl, was declared Saturday to be past the critical stage and doctors hoped to remove her soon from an oxygen tank which has aided her breathing.

Dr. William Turnbull, superintendent of the Philadelphia General Hospital, examined records which showed the tiny girl had taken nourishment regularly during the night.

He said her temperature had fallen toward normal steadily since she was delivered in an operation Friday one minute after her mother died.

The mother was afflicted with an incurable disease and doctors kept a death watch waiting for her to die before delivering the baby.

Wheat Farmers Use More Machinery.

COLLAPSE, Wash.—(AP)—Returning prosperity has hastened the passing of horses from the farms of Whitman county, called the nation's greatest wheat-producing country.

The assessor reported 3,076 fewer horses in the county July 1 than a year ago, a drop of 19 per cent. The replacement cost was reflected in an increase of the assessed value of farm machinery from $559,614 to $961,630.

Radio Career Now Beckons Miss Hallin

By NEA Service

NEW YORK.—Isabelle Hallin, pert and pretty young school teacher whose rumored cocktail party for her pupils brewed a tempest in the Saugus, Mass., teapot and cost her a teaching job, hopes now to make good as a radio artist—but not before she achieves vindication in her home town. The prospect of a radio contract has not dimmed her determination to fight for renewal of her teaching contract.

"It's a matter of principle now," she explained while awaiting an audition at the NBC studios.

With others, Miss Hallin was being auditioned for a new "radio newsreel." The audience's eyes focused on her sleekly coiffed bright blonde hair and smartly simple black crepe dress. She looked "show business," magazine cover, smart fashion model—anything but a New England school-marm.

Though a veteran of years of summer stock acting, Miss Hallin was as nervous as one of her own high school dramatic pupils. Her hands trembled uncontrollably. But with her microphone cue, stage training came to her rescue. She delivered her lines in a clear, strong voice that brought a hearty blast of "Swell! Wonderful!" from the control room's loud speaker.

An exclusive picture takes you into the orange and black "cocktail room" of the Hallin home in Saugus, Mass., where Isabelle Hallin rehearsed a school play and served students refreshments. Her father refuses to allow pictures of the brass rail bar to be made.

Demo Committee Meets in Special Session Saturday

Approves Action of State Committee in Nominating Bailey

NEWSPAPER ACCUSED

Resolution Says Arkansas Democrat Waging Fight Against Governor

The Hempstead County Democratic Central Committee, meeting in special session here Saturday, adopted a resolution favoring the state committee's nomination of Governor Carl E. Bailey to the U. S. senate seat.

The resolution was unanimously passed. There was not a dissenting vote. Approximately 21 committeemen attended.

The local committee, in its resolution, accused the Arkansas Democrat, Little Rock newspaper, of "waging a fight against the committee and against the nomination of Governor Carl E. Bailey."

The resolution further said: "And by articles published by the Little Rock newspaper, makes it plain that the paper is very much concerned over the democracy of Hempstead county, and seems to question the democracy of the democratic central committee of Hempstead county."

The resolution follows: WHEREAS, the State Democratic Central committee by virtue of the authority vested in it by the rules governing the Democratic Party has nominated Governor Carl E. Bailey for the office of United States Senator, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Joseph T. Robinson; and

WHEREAS, the said committee several days prior to the date it acted on said matter, appointed a subcommittee to investigate and study the situation and recommend to the State Committee such action as said subcommittee thought advisable; and

WHEREAS, the said subcommittee set a date and notified the general public through the public press of the time and place where said subcommittee would meet and hear any suggestions that anyone cared to make with respect to the situation; and

WHEREAS, pursuant to said notice said subcommittee met at the time and place appointed, and not anyone appeared to suggest or recommend with respect to what action the State Committee should take; and

WHEREAS, the said subcommittee made a written report to the State Committee recommending that the State Committee nominate a candidate for the office of the United States Senate, and in said written report gave its reasons for making said recommendation; and

WHEREAS, the State Central Committee adopted said report and nominated Governor Carl E. Bailey for the United States Senate; and

WHEREAS, some opposition has arisen to the said action of the State Committee, and the legality of said action is being questioned; and

WHEREAS, the Arkansas Democrat, a daily newspaper published in the City of Little Rock, Arkansas, is waging a fight against the Committee, and against the nomination of Governor Carl E. Bailey; and by articles published by it seems to be very much concerned over the democracy of Hempstead County, and seems to question the democracy of the democratic central committee of Hempstead County; and articles published in said paper seem to try to convey the idea to the general public that the democratic central committee of Hempstead County does not favor the action taken by the State Committee and will not support Governor Carl E. Bailey, the nominee of the Democratic Party;

NOW, THEREFORE, Be It Resolved, By the Democratic Central Committee of Hempstead County, that we approve the action of the State Central Committee in nominating a candidate for the office of United States Senator.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That we approve the action of the State Central Committee in nominating Governor Carl E. Bailey for said office.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the State Central Committee has full authority and acted within the rules of the Democratic Party, in nominating a candidate for the United States Senate as is shown by action 40, of the Rules governing the Democratic Party of Arkansas; and under said rules, and the custom that has always prevailed in the Democratic Party of Arkansas that it is the duty of every Democrat to support the nominee of the Party.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That we have implicit faith in the loyalty and fidelity of Governor Carl E. Bailey

Housing Bill Is Passed by Senate

Measure Calls for Outlay of More Than 700 Million Dollars

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Wagner housing bill, calling for an outlay of more than $700,000,000 to clear slums and build low-cost homes, passed the senate Friday, but in such circumstances that the enthusiasm of its backers was dampened.

Senator Wagner (D-NY) and other administration men struggled in vain to delete an amendment restricting the cost of the housing to $4,000 a family unit or $1,000 a room.

The amendment, proposed by Senator Byrd (D-Va.), was passed by a 49-39 vote several days ago, and Friday the senate tabled a motion to reconsider, 44 to 39. Wagner and others argued the amendment would paralyze or kill the program. Byrd declared it is necessary to prevent "extravagance" which, he said, had marked the resettlement administration's housing activities.

Though the five-day debate on the bill had been strenuous, the vote on final passage was 64 to 16.

The senate made another important change in the measure when it voted to place the administration of the program under Secretary Ickes' interior department, instead of an independent agency.

President Jackson in 1828 launched an attack on the Bank of the U. S. as he considered it a detriment to state banks.

Racketeering Unions Play a Smooth Game

NO MATTER how the individual citizen stands on the organizational rights of employees or employers, he will find it advantageous to be aware of the practices and principles—or lack of them—which distinguish racketeering from legitimate activity.

New York City has been going through a stiff course in these fundamentals with Thomas E. Dewey, special prosecutor of rackets, as teacher. And often the revelations have been startling.

The recent trial of a group of men for conspiracy to put out of business such bakeries as failed to abide by certain rules and prices established by an "association" provides some good examples of complications that may arise.

ONE WITNESS testified that when a price-cutting baker was to be chastized, the organization put a "black wagon" on his route. The "black wagon," bearing no firm name, was to follow the route trucks of the price-cutter and undersell him.

A Bronx baker who suspected, but could not prove that union officials and officers of a bakers' association were conspiring to drive him out of business, told how his shop was picketed and one of his trucks burned. Other witnesses testified to payments they had made to assure continuation of "protection," and to enforce the organization's rules.

Now, a price-cutting war in itself is not necessarily evidence of racketeering. Nor is the formation of a union of workers, or an association of business men. It is only when these legal forms are "borrowed" to shield illegal activities that the trouble begins.

A typical feature of the rackets is that their promoters are adept at picking out the right spot and the right time to begin without attracting attention. Usually, the best openings come when the public is enormously occupied with some other problem.

Right now, then, when scores of new, legally sanctioned unions are being formed, and uncertainty over industrial readjustment is diverting the attention of a nervous public, the field is perfectly smoke-screened for all shades and varieties of illegitimate organization projects.

THE RACKETEER has been chased down and prosecuted, sporadically, in many communities. But he always comes back, and he always exacts the same toll from the common man, who usually already has had as much expense as his pocketbook will bear.

Therein lies an object lesson which may be painfully administered to any person unless he is forewarned and forearmed. There must be a weeding of the bad from the good, and all the good sense and discernment of everyone will be needed to do it properly.

In fact, besides those who are victimized by the chiseling imitators, many another honest person is likely to wake up some day and find himself actually affiliated with such a bunch of outlaws. That's just how smoothly the game is played.

Death in a White Tie

THE NAZI regime in Germany has gone back to the French revolution in adopting the guillotine as its official quietus-agent.

Modernized, and for all we know, streamlined, this new refinement of M. Guillotin's happy thought of the era of Liberty, Equality, and Fraternity now replaces the cruder headman's sword in Germany.

This comes as a bit of a shock to Americans, though it is hard to see how being fried to death in an electric griddle is any more desirable.

The interesting innovation in the new Germanic final leave-takings is that the executioner and his two assistants wear evening dress, with top hat and white gloves. You can almost read the engraved invitations:

"Her Hitler cordially invites you to a farewell party for Herr Ungehorsam at Moabit prison at 7:30 Tuesday next. White tie."

Eye Infections and Loss of Function Are Results of Vitamin A Deficiency

This is the tenth in a series of 11 articles dealing with body deficiency in vitamins and the diseases caused by lack of these elements.

(No. 286)

In the retina of the eye there is a pigment called visual purple. When the eyes are used in a bright light, this visual purple constantly is being bleached. This occurs particularly, for example, in case of snow blindness and also when one drives in bright sunlight in the summer or when one looks out over a sunlit body of water.

In Newfoundland, the fishermen suffer particularly with a loss of visual purple because of their work on the ocean in the sun. Moreover, the diet of these fishermen is likely to be deficient in vitamin A, because they live in winter on a diet consisting mostly of white flour, preserved meats, fish, and similar substances without adequate vitamin A.

Such a diet also may be deficient in fresh fruits, vegetables, butter, or even in the fish liver oils which are very rich in this vitamin.

One of the early symptoms of a deficiency of vitamin A is night blindness. When one has night blindness, he can see fairly well in a bright light but cannot see well in the dark.

For years, the Newfoundland fishermen have known they could fight night blindness by eating the livers of the cod or of the seagull.

If, however, the person with night blindness does not take a sufficient amount of vitamin A, he later will develop an advanced form of inflammation of the eyes which includes swelling of the eyelids, and dryness and an inflamed condition of the inner surface.

Try This On Your Wife

amount of vitamin A in the diet can resist invasion of the germs should the eye become irritated, but when there is lack of this vitamin, the germs invade readily.

Other conditions have from time to time been connected with a deficiency of vitamin A in the diet.

For instance, it has been asserted that lack of vitamin A in the diet results in the formation of stones in the kidneys and in the bladder. A deficiency of vitamin A is sometimes manifested by an inflammation of the skin with dryness, scaling and pigmentation. It has been said that women who have a deficiency of vitamin A may be more likely to become infected in childbirth.

However, all of these conditions are symptoms of a lack of vitamins in general, as well as a lack of vitamin A.

Obviously, the one necessary measure in the deficiency of vitamin A is to add extra vitamin A containing foods to the diet. This may be accomplished by including milk, butter, eggs and fresh vegetables, particularly those containing the yellow pigment called carotene, which is the substance from which the body forms vitamin A.

The substance richest in vitamin A is halibut liver oil. Among the foods which are rich in carotene are yellow turnips, sweet potatoes, carrots, yellow corn, and yellow peas. The white varieties of vegetables do not supply much vitamin A.

Green leaves of vegetables of all kinds contain carotene, which however is masked by the green chlorophyll. There is a considerable amount of vitamin A in the tomato covered up, however, by the red pigment. Thus some substances in the diet contain vitamin A itself and others the carotene from which the body forms vitamin A.

Moreover, there are prepared concentrates exceedingly rich in vitamin A, as well as carotene, which may be taken to enhance the vitamin A content of foods.

NEXT: Other vitamins—conclusion.

Behind the Scenes at a Murder Trial
Lamson's New Book Readable
Despite Repetitions

Once in a great while comes the book that carries you behind the scenes in that most poignant of human experiences—a murder trial. Such a book was "We Who Are About to Die," David Lamson's story of his conviction and of his 13 months in the Condemned Row of San Quentin after he was sentenced to hang for the murder of his wife.

Lamson's conviction was reversed and after two more trials he gained his freedom. Now he comes forth with a new book in the same vein as his first, "Whirlpool" (Scribner's Sons $2.50).

"Whirlpool" is the story of Hannibal Norwalk, who struck down his brother in a fit of jealous anger when he discovered him with his wife alone at the rear of their little farm. Subsequently the brother disappeared and three years later a skeleton was found on the same farm. So Hannibal Norwalk was tried for murder.

Certainly there has been no more frank indictment of small-town politics and small-town trial by jury than this book. As in "We Who Are About to Die," Lamson portrays the sensations of an innocent man in the death house, the psychology of the victim and the devious workings of the net of circumstantial evidence.

One feels, on the whole, that Lamson has repeated a great deal here and the effect is nullified somewhat by the earlier book, a greater story simply because it was essentially fact. But "Whirlpool" is no less vivid and it is decidedly readable.—P. G. F.

Young Couples Apt to Let Parenthood Blight Romance—Should Talk Over Problems

The most trying time of all marriage usually comes after the first year. When the babies begin to arrive, here are a boy and girl, for usually these parents are young, who have lived in a world to themselves. Now all that is changed.

They could keep themselves up, each for the other, in appearance and temper. Mary looked fresh as a daisy for John each evening when he came home. The house was dainty and restful for his jaded nerves.

John, in turn, had cash for new shirts and ties, and could blow himself to a new suit, if his honeymoon clothes didn't last.

There could be a party now and then, or a jaunt to a club on pay night. Now comes Junior.

A New Era Begins
 Just at first, in the flush of their new thrill over having company, crib size, John and Mary do not notice that a new era has begun for them. Their idea is that all will be as before, plus Junior.

But gradually John realizes that Mary has no time for him any more. That she is entirely different from the blithe sweetheart of yore.

Perhaps meals are sketchy and irregular and the dishes never seem to be out of sight. The house is littered with baby things, and to make matters worse, Junior is one of those small males with lusty lungs and colic.

Mary, on her side, is pretty tired. She thinks John should help more. She also thinks he should make more. There isn't a decent rag in her closet, and she's tired looking at John's hair, which now goes too long between visits to the barber.

Both of them need things, but the hospital bill isn't quite cleaned up. And the new bed and buggy have cost money. The milk bills are enormous.

"What is this thing we've gotten into, called a happy marriage?" they brood. "Junior is a darling, but we're people after all, and love life and nice things. Where is romance? Where is excitement?"

Talk Matters Over

It takes character and patience to survive these years of childbearing. The old days won't come back, but the new ones will continue to be richer and sweeter if the Johns and Marys of the world with their new kingdoms to enjoy, would sit down, their arms around each other, and be frank.

To talk it all out, to plan a campaign of helpfulness and co-operation rather than continuing in secret bitterness will save many heartaches. It is at this time that much future trouble has its beginning when each begins to criticize the other.

Junior may have sisters and brothers, and the psychology of the honeymoon, of course, change, away from self and selfishness to greater things. Children should bring parents closer together, yet it does not always happen so. Many fathers and mothers devoted enough to their families, are out of the world with their new kingdoms to enjoy, would sit down, their arms around each other, and be frank.

Other scenarios in Hollywood.

For a time he argued successfully for solo assignments, but finally a studio finally ordered him to write a screen play in collaboration with a woman author.

When they were introduced he told her, "I have only one eccentricity—I have to take off all my clothes before I can do any writing."

The woman walked out and left him to do the job alone.

Temperament and Cussing

Walter Baxter has no patience with actors who say they're not temperamental. He says, "Actors are not normal people. Normal people are happy and placid. Actors have got to have a sort of nervous instability seething inside 'em. Without temperament they're not fitted for anything better than mob scenes or jobs as stand-ins."

Lone Woman

Dorothy Arzner, only woman director, doubts that she ever will have much feminine company in her profession.

The reason is simple: A male director commands respect, or anyway awe, when he blows off steam by shouting and cussing. "But let a woman director try that and the cast would snicker and think she was having hysterics."

Miss Arzner has a male assistant who does the necessary shouting on her sets. But he seldom swears for her.

The earliest complete clock of which there is certain record was made by a Sarracen mechanic in the 13th century.

Stamp News

DECISION of the government to invite competitive designs for a new stamp to be the initial denomination of a new presidential series, has been announced by the Treasury Department procurement division.

The competition is for the design of a one-cent United States postage stamp picturing George Washington. It is proposed to issue a series of various denominations which shall be related in design, and eventually to picture each of the presidents. Five hundred dollars will be awarded as the first prize; $300 for second prize and $200 for third place.

All American artists, amateur and professional alike, are invited to enter the contest. The competition closes Sept. 15. Detailed information may be obtained from the Treasury Department, Procurement Division or the Post-office Department, Washington.

The new Constitution stamp will have as its central design a reproduction of J. B. Stearns' painting showing the actual signing of the Constitution. Further details as to size, color, first-day cover arrangements for this issue on Sept. 17 will be announced later.

The annual American Philatelic Society convention will be held in Detroit, Aug. 31 to Sept. 3.

Today's Pattern

THE popularity of the shirtwaist dress continues into Fall—its classic lines are truly undated. Be sure to include one in your Fall wardrobe—it is the most wearable, gad-about costume you can find. Pattern 8941, with inverted pleat back and front in skirt adheres to the traditional lines of this fashion. The set-in sleeves also have an inverted pleat for extra fullness and the simple notched collar is cut in a low V.

As a costume to take you from one season into the next—make up this dress in heavy rayon crepe or in a lovely dark silk. Or since plaids are such a high fashion, a gay plaid with contrasting collar would be amusing for Fall.

Pattern 8941 is required for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3 3/4 yards of 38-inch material.

The Fall pattern book is now ready and includes 32 pages of late designs. Purchased separately, it is 15 cents. If ordered with the pattern above, send in only an additional 10 cents.

To secure your pattern, with complete step-by-step sew chart, send 15 CENTS IN COIN with your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE to TODAY'S PATTERNS, 11 STERLING PLACE, BROOKLYN, N. Y., and be sure to MENTION THE NAME OF THIS NEWSPAPER.

If We Had But a Day:
We should feel the hours with the sweetest thing,
If we had but a day;
We should drink alone at the purest spring
In our upward way;
We should love with a lifetime's love in an hour,
If the hours were few.
We should rest, not for dreams, but for fresher power
To be and do.
We should guide our wayward or wearied wills
By the clearest light;
We should keep our eyes on the heavenly hills
If they lay in sight.
We should waste no moments in weak regret,
If the day were but one;
If what we remember, and what we forget
Went out with the sun;
We should be from our clamorous selves set free
To work or to pray;
And to be what the Father would have us to be,
If we had but a day.—Selected.

FIRST CHRISTIAN

V. A. Hammond, Pastor

We started August off with a bang last Sunday—93 in Bible School. Let's make it an even 100 this Sunday. We can do it.
The watermelon feast given by the men's class, with the Loyal Women's class as guests, together with the officers of the school, held on the church lawn Friday night, was enjoyed by the large number of members and guests present. Brief talks by the pastor and members of the class and guests, and an address by Rev. A. E. Ewell were features of the program. Special musical numbers were brought by two negro male quartets. C. S. Lowthorp, teacher of the men's class, furnished the chilled watermelons for the occasion.

The sermon Sunday morning is on the subject "Quench Not the Spirit." When Jesus Christ came he had pity for the outcast. He bent over the harlots. He welcomed the prodigals. He even prayed for his murderers. But there were some to whom he could only speak words of black and hopeless condemnation. And they were the members of the church—the religious people of his day—people religious in their washings, religious in their looks. These were the people whom Christ greeted as a generation of vipers, and himself wondered how they could escape the damnation of hell. Jesus spoke harshly of the formal religionists of his day and time. How would he speak of the hosts of a house party for rushees over the state.

The W. Y. A's of First Baptist church will meet at a picnic Monday evening at Fair park. Cars will leave the church at 6:30.

have much to say.
Hailin Bar Is Moot Topic
"I have a bar in my basement," Mr. Hailin says. "It has a brass rail on it, too, but I've only used it once. That was the night some friends of mine gave it to me when we had a house-warming after our house was rebuilt, following a fire. Isabelle never had a drop to drink in her life. I admit that I drink a little now and then."

However, that bar is a sore spot in the game room now. It doesn't want it in pictures. He stands in its way lest a wandering camera finds it.
"Isabelle makes all of her own clothes," her father praises. "She went to Jackson College, to prepare to be a doctor, but she could not stand the sight of blood so she gave up her pre-medic at the end of the first year and started the teacher's course. She has no time for anything but work. She teaches 17 and 18 hours a day; teaches 240 children in English, coaches 76 more in dramatics, has one library period every day, plays with the "Tavern Players" of Lynn and appears in plays at Jackson College. Often I make her stop grading papers, along about one o'clock in the morning and go to bed."

Students Threaten to Strike
"We won't go back to school in the fall, if Miss Hailin isn't re-instated," the High School boys and girls are challenging.

"We haven't small hope that she will be permitted to teach again."
"The school board should speak out and say what it knows," some of the village housewives advise.

So along the shaded streets of Saugus the gossip drifts. Just who said what that night at the party, just what was contained in those glasses served in the orange and black play room, what the Congregational minister's wife said and what Maria Smith offered—these are vital concerns which, in Saugus today, overshadow talk of the state of the nation.

Christians living today. Christians whose daily lives give little or no evidence of their professions? Come hear the sermon.

The evening service will be held in the cool open-air Lawn Chapel. The sermon is on "The Spirit of the Ages." After the resurrection the apostles had to pioneer into a new age of living. We, too, are called today to carry the banner of Christianity into a new age.

We are called upon to live Christ among a people who have talked much about him but who do not know him. We are called upon to pioneer for Christ against sincere souls who are trying to find some other way to solve the problems of living today. Our changing civilization, the changing church, the changing attitudes of people, all call for the teaching of the Great Teacher, who through all the changing scenes of human effort, teaches the timeless, changeless truth. These days and times need a Teacher and Guide who will lead floundering humanity out of unwholesome levels of defeat and decay to higher ground.

Come worship with us in the cool open-air lawn chapel Sunday night. You'll be glad you came, and so will we.

ON THE THEATERS

At the New
Every city and hamlet has a Cinderella happening almost every day of the year. The Goddess of Fortune is forever active increasing happiness and satisfying hopes and ambitions to balance against adversities and disappointments.
The new novel and highly entertaining screen adventures of a modern masculine hero will be shown Sunday and Monday at the New theater when Hal Roach-M-G-M feature comedy, "Mister Cinderella," opens a two day engagement.

In this picture Jack Haley is a barber with a society complex in a fashionable hotel. His fairy godfather proves to be a customer—a playboy and man of wealth of Boston, who induces Jack to leave the tonsorial parlor and take his clothes and place in a Back Bay drawing room.

Through the bewildering maze of high society, Haley, the barber, goes into a cloud of calamity, conquest and comedy. But in rib-tickling episodes he solves big business, modern inventions and conventions and wins Betty Furness, his Princess Charming.

Arthur Treacher and Raymond Walburn, steller character actors, are featured with Jack Haley and Betty Furness with an outstanding supporting cast of Robert McWade, Rosina Lawrence, Monroe Owsley, Kathleen Lockhart, Edward Brophy, Charlotte Winslow, Tom Dugan, Iris Adrian, Toby Wing, Morgan Wallace, Arthur Aylesworth, John Hyams and Leila McIntyre. Edward Sedgwick directed.

A most elaborate and realistic background has been given the production of "Mister Cinderella" to have the appeal of an everyday happening with the added charm and hilarity of a magic wand.

Saenger-Malto

Dick Powell, handsome singing star, who has been seen in the gorgeous "Gold Diggers of 1937" a few months ago, will appear again Sunday and Monday at the Saenger in another immense musical comedy, "The Singing Marine."

This is a yarn about a "leather-neck" from the San Diego barracks, possessed of plenty of good looks and a splendid voice, who is sent to New York by his company-mates to have a try at the amateur hour contest conducted by the famous "Major Bowes."

He makes the grade and leaps at once to fame and an enormous salary. But feminine hero-worship—plus the money he is making—turns Dick's head.

He forgets also his girl friend, Doris Weston, new singing beauty of the screen, who was a waitress in San Diego.

But when his leave of absence expires, he has to return to his Marine company and is assigned to duty in China. There he gets a chance to perform a heroic feat and save a comrade, which restores him to the regard of his fellow-Marines and of Doris, too.

"Little Caesar" gives a blue-blooded beauty a taste of red-blooded love in "Thunder in the City," at the Rialto Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Here at last is Edward G. Robinson in the kind of role his fans have always wanted to see him play—a role that unleashes the full fury of Robinson's power to set our blood pounding—to lash our emotions with the full power of a thunderbolt!

A world metropolis trembled on his every word... a woman's lips trembled for his every kiss! Here is the most powerful role for the man who made screen history with "Smart Money," "Little Caesar," "The Silver Dollar" and "Bullets or Ballots."

By the way, the picture is a masterpiece of the kind of role his fans have always wanted to see him play—a role that unleashes the full fury of Robinson's power to set our blood pounding—to lash our emotions with the full power of a thunderbolt!

DeQueen Is Host to Rotary Clubs

Inter-City Group Is Entertained—Robbins Is Speaker

DE QUEEN, Ark.—Rotarians of De Queen were hosts Friday night to large delegations from Rotary clubs of Stamps, Prescott, Texarkana, Ashdown and Hope for an inter-city meeting at which Carrell Robbins, of Stuttgart, former district governor made a report on the recent convention of Rotary International at Nice, France.

Three other former district governors were present, Ed F. McFadden, of Hope, and L. C. Cargile and Henry W. Stillwell, of Texarkana. Robbins and McFadden were governors of the old 62nd district, now District 138, and Stillwell and Cargile were governors of the old 48th district, now District 128.

Ed Henderson, president of the De Queen club, presided. Welcome was extended by Ray Kimball, secretary of the De Queen club, with response by McFadden.

Tap dancing by Miss Lolla Pickett, a flute solo by Abe Collins, Jr., and a saxophone solo by Paul Turner, provided entertainment. Miss Martha Frances Allen was accompanist.

Robbins, who was introduced by Abe Collins, Sr., described the Atlantic cross, visits to France, Italy, England, Switzerland and then went into detail concerning the convention proceedings, including both formal sessions and the elaborate entertainment provided for the visiting delegates.

Dinner, preceding the program, was served on the lawn adjoining the Barlow hotel.
